L. Summary of my Activities and Future Plans

As illustrated by my CV in the previous years I emphasized research on the various aspects of elder abuse and neglect including IPV in late life and elder self-neglect. At the present time the emphasis of my work shifted towards special populations that are marginalized in a variety of ways, including abuse and neglect, but reaching beyond it. My work on mentally ill aging persons, the disabled and their family, suicide among old persons are examples of such expansion. I am further interested to provide knowledge on the balance of needs and rights of such populations and my work on restorative justice is an example. My recent work = continue this direction and include marginalized populations such as the criminal older adults, the aging women who are sexually abused and old women who experienced incest in their early life. Such expansion will examine the transferability of my previous findings into a more general theoretical framework to include marginalized older populations. Finally, I am interested to expand on my initial interest on multiculturalism and the older adults by exploring the social construction of abuse across generations and cultural and subcultural groups. I am presently studying the Ultra- Orthodox population towards this end. As for my research methodology expertise, I apply my proficiency in different traditions of qualitative research methods. This includes establishing in the gerontology department a core and an advanced course sequence on qualitative research approaches. In these courses I focus on reflexivity as an essential skill in teaching and in conducting qualitative research. Moreover, in my research I developed a reliable way to collect qualitative interview data from different perspectives and to use the family as a unit of analysis, which gains both, validation and depth to the process of inquiry. Throughout my career I have been asked by various international organizations and Universities to share both methodological and subject matter knowledge. For example, the opportunity to present my recent work during the Interest day of elder abuse in The 21th IAGG World Congress of Gerontology and Geriatrics- and in USC Judith D.

Tamkin Scholar Awards symposium on : Theory-Informed research in elder abuse . This enabled me to both share and learn and develop through the exchange. I intend to maintain and further develop these relationships by planning new joint research undertakings such as the Minerva Center for Intersectionality which if funded will constitute a solid grounding for both collaboration and cross-cultural research
